About

Come take your photography skills to the next level in Montana's hottest destination. Bozeman has recently been drawing comparisons to Jackson, Wyoming, deemed by some to be the adventure capital of the United States.

No matter where you are traveling from, Bozeman is the perfect destination to practice your photography. Jordan Evans is an award-winning cinematographer, and he is ready to show you how to take and edit top notch landscape and wildlife photographs.

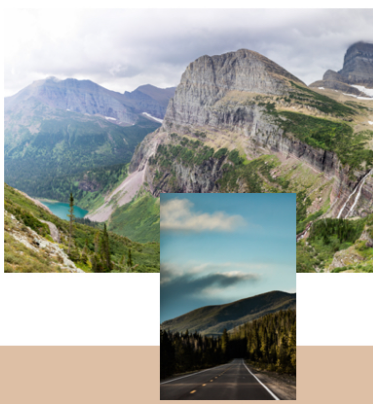

Jordan Evans

After growing up in Raleigh, NC, I wanted to move out west for my college experience. I settled on Colorado College, a small liberal arts school in Colorado Springs.

Four years flew by, and I still wasn't ready to "get a real job", so I decided to move to Bozeman, Montana. That summer, I worked for a local fly fishing outfitter during the day and bartended at night. Well, three months has turned into fourteen years, a beautiful wife, and a six-year old daughter.

I've been home for three days, and I can't decide what I miss more - Bozeman or Jordan and his beautiful family! It really is hard to believe places like this exist within our country, and I completely understand why Jordan decided to call Montana home. In terms of photography skills, I learned so much! I had heard about Journeyman through a friend and stumbled upon Jordan's class when I got on the site. I could not be more pleased with the investment. Jordan is a true professional, and he quickly helped me realize some of the rookie mistakes I was making behind the camera. It was great to see North Yellowstone with someone who's...
